Introduction:

On 8th September 2023, the Mar Gregorios College of Law played host to the Last Mile Delivery Innovation Challenge Mini Hackathon. The event aimed to foster creativity and sustainable solutions to the challenges posed by last-mile delivery in today's rapidly evolving world. Organized by the Centre for Environmental Studies and supported by various environmental and sustainability-focused organizations, the hackathon brought together 78 students to brainstorm and present their innovative ideas.

Event Highlights:

The mini hackathon kicked off at 10:30 AM with an enthusiastic group of students ready to tackle the last-mile delivery problem. Participants were divided into groups, each tasked with brainstorming innovative solutions to address the challenges faced in the final leg of product delivery.

The event witnessed lively discussions, creative thinking, and collaborative efforts among the students. After an intense brainstorming session, each group was given the opportunity to present their ideas to a panel of esteemed judges. The panel consisted of Ms. Deepa Anathapadmanabhan, Co-founder of Sustera, Mr. Avinash Thomas, a member of the Sustera Foundation, and Ms. Ashna, a volunteer of the Sustera Foundation.

The presentations showcased a diverse range of ideas, from eco-friendly packaging solutions to the use of sustainable transportation methods for last-mile delivery. The judges carefully evaluated each presentation, considering its innovation, sustainability, and feasibility.

After a thorough review, Group 7 emerged as the winner of the Last Mile Delivery Innovation Challenge Mini Hackathon. Their idea demonstrated a unique blend of creativity and practicality, addressing key environmental and logistical concerns associated with last-mile delivery.

As a token of appreciation for their outstanding efforts, the winning group was awarded gift vouchers from Sanchi Bags, a sustainable brand known for its eco-friendly products.
